IN AND AROUND THE CITY.

—Mr. G. W. McCammon is in the city visiting his son, M. E. McCammon.—Mr. George will be at home to-day or to-morrow and will occupy his pulpit, morning and evening, next Sabbath.—Old Mrs. Reno, an old settler of Alexander county, died at her home, near Cachle, on Tuesday last.—Mr. Joe Smith is installed behind the counters of the New York Store—a position for which his good address and activity of motion peculiarly fit him.—Messrs. Halliday Brothers are covering the shed portion of their large warehouse below the St. Charles, with tin. The main structure is shingled.—A new industrial establishment is Mark Cain's shoe shop that is about to set up one door above Clancy's on Commercial and Twelfth. And so we grow.—Our immediate neighbors, along side of us, have, uniformly, been such will disposed people that we have concluded to say nothing about their chatter, of yesterday.—A third boy to Mr. and Mrs. Mat. Fulton —a bouncing eleven pounder, who opened his eyes upon the world, yesterday morning, is an announcement we make for home consumption.—At the novel raffle of which we spoke, yesterday, Oley Walsh won the Poland-China pig by a throw of 42, which was the highest, and Tim Cahill won the pup with a throw of 20, which was the lowest.—James Smith, of the firm of Smith & Bro., is in St. Louis purchasing goods, which will commence arriving in Cairo in a few days. The firm will, then, as has been their custom, let the public "know further."—Dunker arrested Andy Quinn and Wiley Esque, late Wednesday night for drunkenness. They were taken before Squire Robinson, yesterday, and fined $1 each. Wiley paid, and Andy took three days in the cooler.—The Central Archery club, at its meeting last night, decided to postpone its next meeting until Wednesday afternoon, Sept.
3d, at 3 o'clock, to meet at the park, when the best scores made, will hold the offices for the month of September.—Mr. James Withrow, who works in Lehigh's sawmill, at Bird's Point, came across the river yesterday evening, with his right thumb sawed or torn off, and his hand otherwise injured. In what manner the injury was inflicted, we could not learn.—There were sixteen ladies present at the meeting of the W. C. T. U. yesterday afternoon. After a pleasant meeting it was agreed to add an attraction to the club meeting of next Friday night. Particulars will be made known in due season.—M. E. McCammon, on Washington, a few doors below Tenth, has purchased some extra fine cattle, and feels confident of his ability to serve his customers with as choice beef as can be found in Cairo or elsewhere. Served in quantities to suit, and delivered in any part of the city.—A car load of Cairoites left by the narrow gauge, yesterday morning, to participate in the doings at Hodges Park. A second car load left about dinner time. The crowd present was the largest, probably, that ever gathered in that portion of the city.—The regular weekly meeting of the Reform club will be held this evening. It was stated last week that the reformed Reverend Mr. Maxwell would address the audience, and if the gentleman is still in the city he will doubtless be on hand. If he is not, there will be no lack of talkers. Go.—"Five marriages on the tapis up-town," is the shape in which the information was communicated to us, "and all of them will be consummated within the next thirty days." And then our informant detailed the names of the contracting parties, which are—withheld for obvious reasons.—The shavings about the box factory dry house caught fire, yesterday evening and but for the opportune arrival of one of the hands, would have speedily developed into a disastrous conflagration. The flames were extinguished before they had made any headway in the building.—The clanging of the fire bells, yesterday afternoon, was to give notice of the discovery of an incipient conflagration in Reub Smith's dwelling house on Fourteenth street. The Hibernians extinguished the flames before much damage was done.
A defective flue is responsible for the trouble.—Street Superintendent Smith has "notified" the city as far up as a point opposite the foot of Eleventh, on the Ohio Levee, and to the north side of Eighth betweenWashington and Walnut. He has found two or three gentlemen who declare the law to be "unconstitutional." Two delinquents will be brought to a legal account next Monday.—One of our citizens finding himself in the incipient stages of consumption, acted upon the suggestion of a friend and used dog fat. He secured a healthy dog, had him killed and dressed, and has been using the flesh, cooked rare, and the fat, boiled down, to great advantage. He finds himself much improved, and is encouraged by the hope that dog meat and lard will yet work his cure.—Mat Burns, son of old Mat (who was known to all the old residents of Cairo) stole two horses from a farm in the vicinity of Charleston, Missouri, the other day, and made his way with the animals to Kentucky. He was promptly followed, overhauled at Blandville, and thrown in jail.
He will be tried in the Ballard circuit court, and will be more fortunate than he has any occasion to hope to be, if he escapes with less than ten years' service in the Kentucky penitentiary.—We are sorry to say that there is no improvement in Mr. Naughton's condition.
Some time ago his watch was raffled off to provide means to supply his needs, and the chance taken by a lady, secured the watch, which is worth sixty or seventy dollars.
With a generosity that speaks volumes in her praise, she ordered the watch to be returned to the sick man, that it might be his resource in another time of need. That time has arrived, and if the chances are all taken, the watch will be raffled off again on Saturday evening next.—Number 1 of volume 4 of "C. O. Tatler & Co's Comic Advertiser" was circulated yesterday. It is a clever way to advertise, but an hour after the sheet is put out it disappears, and for "aye." The daily advertiser is preserved until displaced by a later copy, so the card or local of the advertiser is kept constantly before the people; and, we are glad to add that Messrs. C. O. P. & Co. appreciating that fact, and its general excellence as an advertising medium, are among the most liberal of the patrons of its columns.—Nellie Cooper and Annie House were arrested, yesterday, as inmates of a house of ill-fame, and Squire Robinson inflicted a fine of $10 and costs upon each of them.
They were persistent and overly conspicuous street walkers, devoting a large share of their time to that manner of advertising themselves. As we are without an ordinance that directly denounces a penalty against street-walking, the charge against them was made in the form above stated.
They had no money wherewith to pay the fines and were sent to the calaboose for a period of fifteen days each.—Since our authorities are bestowing proper attention upon the white nymphs du paree, cannot the black creatures of the same class that infest the lower part of the city be suppressed? Vulgar in look, words and deeds, always upon the streets or in their door-ways no decent female can traverse that part of the city without having both her ears and eyes offended by sights and sounds that are vulgar, obscene and insulting. Such a collection of foul-mouthed, shameless black bawds as infest Fourth street, can be found nowhere else, we dare say, outside the large Southern cities.—With their friends in Cairo and elsewhere, we heartily sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Harman, of Mt. Vernon, in the great domestic affliction to which they have been subjected. A telegram from Mr. Harman, received yesterday afternoon, tells the sad story, in the following words: "My son, Rob-Roy, died this morning, after an illness of only two days." What ailment brought death into the family so quickly is not intimated. He was a strong, vigorous young man, of good morals and correct habits and much attached to home and his home surroundings. THE BULLETIN tenders to the family the assurance of its warmest sympathy.—The excursion, on the Narrow Gauge to St. Louis, next Sunday, (the 31st) will prove a grand success in every particular.
The elements favor it; the weather is cool and pleasant. The time schedule is the same as is made on the road every day; the train will run through as advertised, and there will be no delays at side tracks.
Ample room has been secured so there will be no crowding in the cars. Everybody seems to intend going and it will be well to secure tickets to-day or to-morrow, and be on hand early at the train. The price, two dollars for the round trip, puts in reach of all a ride of 300 miles, through the finest country in Illinois—an inducement that will not fail to fill all the cars.—Yesterday morning a negro man named Bill Wilson, raised some sort of rumpus on the steamer Paris Br. w. a, lying at our wharf, and shortly afterwards dashed ashore and ran up the levee, followed by the mate and several others. Officer Schuckers soon joined in the chase and succeeded in capturing the fugitive, whom he escorted to the office of Squire Robinson. When the cause of the commotion was revealed, it was found to warrant no charge more serious than disorderly conduct. This charge was preferred, and Wilson was fined $5 and costs, whereas he raved, and carried on in a most unseemly manner; and continuing his ill-natured threats and protests after repeated warnings, he was fined $5 for contempt of court.—A white man, named Cotter, and a colored man named Martin, met in the upper part of the city, yesterday, when the colored man, with an impudent bearing, asked for the time of day. One word provoked another until Mr. Cotter, considering the negro's impudence unbearable, gathered a hoop-hole and gave him a walloping with it. Martin repaired to the office of Squire Osborn, while yet his welts were smarting and sued out a writ for Mr. Cotter's arrest.
In due season that individual made his appearance, held a conference with Martin, who shortly afterwards announced that he was desirous of abandoning the prosecution.
And thus, without a balm for his 'wounds or a salve for his stripes and sores, the battered time-asker left the law shop.—An old resident of the county, living near Hodges Park, in a note to the editor says: "You are making the best paper that ever came to Unity out of Cairo. Everybody speaks well of THE BULLETIN, and if you would come out and see us and make a little effort you could put a copy in nearly every reading family of this portion of the county." We value our friend's good opinion, and hope we deserve it. THE BULLETIN already enjoys a very respectable circulation in Alexander county; but, as our correspondent suggests, the number of its subscribers might be increased indefinitely.
The difficulty is in securing the right kind of a canvasser—one that can get the money out of the people, and one from whom we can get the money when once he gets it out of the people. Men who present all the requisites of first-class canvassers and disgorge are remarkably scarce.—An officer, avowedly from Poplar Bluff, Missouri, came to Cairo, last Sunday or Monday. Yesterday morning he was to be seen nowhere in the city. He kept his own counsels, we are told, conferred with nobody, but kept a constant lookout, evidently anxious to find somebody.
While pushing inquiries about him, yesterday, we are told that about dusk Wednesday evening, he came up with a man on the levee, near the foot of Fourth, placed shackles on him, and hurried him down to and across the river. This information proved to be incorrect. The officer arrested nobody, and left the city alone. That he should come here, however, hold himself aloof from fellow officers, and maintain a studied exclusiveness, excited considerable speculation, as was quite natural. He was not on a kidnapping mission, we dare say; but suspicions of that nature were certainly excited.—A friend of ours, over-zealous in the temperance cause, called us to account for interposing a plea in behalf of the two saloon keepers who were arrested for selling liquor on Sunday. He argued that the parties arrested were bound to know the law, and that though the custom of selling liquor behind closed doors on Sunday might have had the sanction of twenty years' usage, the law was as palpably violated by the parties under arrest, as it would have been had every other saloon keeper in the city always observed its requirements.
While we were not disposed to deny that the parties in question had violated the law, we did and do insist that where a radical change in the manner of enforcing a law that affects any considerable number of citizens, is determined upon, common justice and fair dealing demand that the parties directly concerned should receive notice of the change. We urged this, and added that, notice once given, the guilty, without reference to person or position, should be punished. And because of this addendum a friend who propounds a quiet and orderly saloon, assumes that THE BULLETIN is hostile to saloon keepers. Hence, it is seen, that one little well meant paragraph drew a fire on THE BULLETIN from both sides. But our equanimity has not been disturbed a particle. If to deal fairly and justly with saloon keepers, who are pursuing a calling sanctioned and licensed by our laws, gives offense to temperance zealots, "then have we offended" and expect to offend again.
If to insist that saloon keepers be placed upon a plane with other people, and held responsible for willful violations of the law, excites the displeasure of that class, all right: We shall offend them frequently.
The consciousness of our rectitude will be our armor, and assaults from either side will avail nothing.—Between 6 and 7 o'clock Wednesday evening a colored laboring man, a resident of Nineteenth street, arrived at the door of his domicile and noticed no preparation for supper. His gnawing stomach had enforced day-dreams of smoking coffee and meaty potatoes, but instead of finding such a spread awaiting him, he looked in upon a cold cooking stove, and an idle better-half. He demanded to know—being the lord of that castle—"why the table was not set?" The corrugated brow of the woman foretold the reply: "Yes, the table set, and not a missile to put on it! You know'd there was nothing to cook, and if you think I'm going to drudge and slave, and starve and stand your abominations on top of all of it, jest spit all such stuff out of you, 'cause I tell you now I'm not gwine to stand it!" And the lord of the domicile fired up: "Nuffin to cook; nuffin, and only on Sunday evenin I put a half dollar right in your own hand! What's dat money gone? Does you take me for a milliner dat you—." "I takes you for a mean hog," retorted the amiable spouse, as she arose and advanced toward him. "And I," rejoined the furious lord of the domicile, "takes you by the throat, for a lazy, good-for-nothing, money-squanderin wench." And straightway he did take her by the throat and commenced belting her with a manifest purpose to make good his threat to "make her body sore all over." A scream was set up by the imperilled female, and a third party hurried to her rescue. Straightway, then and there, a separation was agreed upon, and the growing pair set about a division of the plunder. The division was finally accomplished; the woman removed her share to other quarters, and the man locked his in "domicile." Pondering the matter over during the night, the female bethought her that she was wronged in the "divide," so yesterday morning she repaired to the "domicile" effected an entrance, and made matters satisfactory to herself by taking what she wanted. But in proportion with her satisfaction became the old man's dissatisfaction. His tantrums were fearful, and while yet the paroxysm was on him, he bethought him of the law, and to the law he has appealed for the righting of his wrongs, which he declares to be many and absolutely insufferable. The woman, enjoying the "nine points" which possession is supposed to give, holds the things, and is happy.

A CARD.

After being appointed by the beloved Bishop at Alton to Cairo station from the conference of the A. M. E. church, the congregation received me and made me wel-make my stay pleasant and I publicly

I ask a blessing on them and their church.

THE CAIRO BULLETIN.

TAKEN IN THE ACT.—Sister Jones called on Elder Smith a few evenings since. Being a next door neighbor, she entered his study unannounced, and was greatly shocked at seeing
